RoIP remote control equipment

Mimer SoftRadio

With SoftRadio you can remote control your two way radios from any Windows PC. The radios are connected through ordinary IP connections, either local in a LAN or remote over WAN or the Internet.

Many radios can be operated from a virtual control head, giving the operator the feeling of sitting in front of the radio although the radio might be in another town.

Each operator can also handle other devices such as phones and intercoms. And each device can be used by many operators in parallel. You can mix different types of radios and systems, both analogue and digital.

To make the system complete there are many options and accessories, for example an audio recorder and a GPS positioning system.

Example of an operator working with three marine radios at bridges along a river, so that the ships can ask for the bridge to be opened.

Dispatcher PC's

When you order a PC through us for the SoftRadio operators, we always set them up so that they are as ready as can be when you get them. This includes loading the Windows software with all the latest upgrades, loading all necessary drivers for LAN, audio, touch screen etc. And of course, loading the SoftRadio version and options that you have ordered. You will get the PC with all audio levels pre-set, all keys and functions at its best.

Mimer X-Link MK2

Mimer X-Link MK2 connects two radios together building a cross patch bridge between them. Audio that comes in through one radio is retransmitted on the other radio and vice versa.

More information on the web page: www.lse.se/x-link

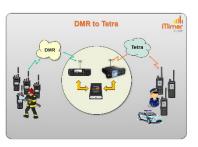

Almost any two radios, and also other audio equipment like PA-systems, can be patched. More cable kits will be available, please ask. 19"-rack available on the accessory's pages.

Please note, the X-Link MK2 unit needs two cable kits, one to each radio.

The old X-Link was discontinued, due to component shortages.

The new X-Link MK2 will start shipping in February 2023.

Mimer SoftLine

Mimer SoftLine is a special version of the SoftRadio system where two network interfaces are connected to each other instead of using a PC software at one end. The two interfaces connect to each other over LAN/WAN or the Internet so that the two nodes can be "anywhere". More information available on the web pages: www.lse.se/softline

Features

- Point-to-point connection over LAN / WAN / The Internet
- No operator PC involved
